

Cream Of The Crop: 4 Luxurious Farm Retreats

As we approach Valentine's Day, guys around the country are no doubt thinking of ways to woo the women in their lives. There's Paris — the City of Light. And then, of course, there's New York City, where every romantic comedy in the history of the world seemingly takes place. But if you really want to reconnect with the one you love, there's nothing quite like the seclusion and nostalgia of a family farm. Here, we'll highlight four of the most romantic ranch retreats in the nation. No matter what corner of the country you live in, you don't have to miss out on a playful weekend in these pastures.

Twin Farms

Located on 300 acres of Vermont farmland, a mere three-hour drive from Boston or five-hour trek from New York City, Twin Farms is the Green Mountain State's only Five-Star experience. Choose from a host of distinct accommodations: there are 10 eclectic and cozy cottages, six suites in the Farmhouse and The Lodge, and four original guest rooms nestled in the Main House. No matter what you choose, the experience will be all-inclusive — meaning every meal, aperitif, activity, after-dinner treat, s'mores by the fire, and fine wine is already paid for — sans tipping. A few days at Twin Farms, and you'll begin to feel a bit like its original owner, Nobel prize-winning author Sinclair Lewis. In other words, you and your companion will feel enthralled — with nature and with each other.
